Massive manhunt looks for Oquendo

Citywide effort.

Volunteers and police have mobilized to try and find the missing autistic boy from Queens.

As the search for Avonte Oquendo, 14, nears two-weeks, Police Commissioner Ray Kelly said no stone has been left unturned.

"We're obviously very concerned at this juncture," Kelly said.

The Oquendo family's lawyer, David Perecman, is suing the city over the boy's disappearance. Last week, he recounted how a School Safety Agent, a member of the NYPD, reportedly told Avonte's grandmother that she had seen him leaving his school at the Center Boulevard School in Long Island City and asked where he was going. When he didn't respond — Avonte is autistic, and cannot communicate verbally — she let him go, Perecman said.

Kelly said there is surveillance video disputing that report.

"She actually tells him to go back," Kelly said.

Kelly said Avonte can be seen on the video slip-

Eric Wright passes out flyers for Avonte Oquendo in Long Island City.

Love of trains

Avonte Oquendo has gone missing on three separate occasions.

- When he was 7 years old, he was found near the Fresh Pond subway.

- When he was 9, he was found at the Kew Gardens station.

- This past August, he was found at the 67th Street subway station.

Missing child

"Everyone just take a moment and look at every child that's passing, and see if it's him."

Vanessa Fontaine

ping out an unguarded side door.

Because of this history and Avonte's known fascination with trains and the subway system, police have kept a close eye on the underground transit system.

A special task force of detectives is on the hunt for him, and Kelly has assigned an additional 50 uniformed officers whose sole duty is to look for Avonte full-time.

Divers and Harbor Unit police, as well as K-9 cops and NYPD helicopters, are helping in the search.

Kelly said "Operation Century," a network of 140 law enforcement agencies throughout the Northeast, is also involved in the search.

And in the city, a deluge of volunteers — from the Guardian Angels and the Vulcan Society to everyday citizens — have turned out to assist law enforcement and the family, posting fliers all over the city.

"We're not giving up hope," Avonte's mother, Vanessa Fontaine, said firmly. "We're just keeping on hope that we'll find him anytime."

Oquendo's autism has been a complicating factor in his disappearance: The fact that the boy is unable to communicate verbally has had authorities especially worried from the start.

Fontaine was clearly moved by the outpouring of support for her and her child.

"Thousands, from every community, every borough," she marveled. "It's beautiful. I'm so grateful for all their hard work and support towards me, it's a beautiful thing."

Pop star Nicki Minaj's name dropped in alleged sex abuse scheme

Police are searching for a man they say used Nicki Minaj to lure a young girl into his car and sexually assault her.

The incident happened last Sunday afternoon at about 2:30 p.m. near Lincoln Street and 116th Avenue in Queens, police said.

A man in a silver SUV drove up to three young girls and told them that he was an agent working for Nicki Minaj and he was looking for models, Police Commissioner Ray Kelly said.

Kelly said he took photos of them, then asked them to get in the car.

One 12-year-old girl complied, Kelly recounted, and he drove her to a nearby location and exposed his genitals and then sexually assaulted her.

The girl managed to run to a nearby friend's house, where the friend called 911.

The young girl was treated at Queens General Hospital.

Police described the suspect as a black male in his 20s, about 6 feet tall and 200 pounds, with a scruffy beard, black hair and brown eyes.

He was last seen wearing blue jeans, a white undershirt, a red jacket, red sneakers, a red and white baseball cap and a silver chain.

Kelly said the NYPD is hoping anyone with information about this man will call their Crime Stoppers hotline at 1-800-577-TIPS (8477).

City officials stand in an underground distribution site 300 feet above parts of the new Water Tunnel 3. / OFFICE OF THE MAYOR

City unveils water tunnel 43 years later

Fresh water. Under construction for generations, the Manhattan portion of Water Tunnel 3 was completed yesterday.

By the numbers

The 8.5 mile portion of Water Tunnel 3 can transport some 350 million gallons of water.

- It has cost $4.7 billion, $2.7 billion during the Bloomberg administration.

- About 5,000 workers excavated more than 82 million cubic feet of soil and rock — enough to fill Madison Square Garden more than 200 times — to construct the tunnel so far.

Clean water

“There is no other infrastructure project that means more to protecting New York City’s future than the third water tunnel.”

Bloomberg

Early yesterday evening, when New Yorkers turned on their taps in Lower Manhattan, an undetectable change nearly six decades in the making occurred.

Manhattan drinking water, once running through a single 96-year-old tunnel, now partially flows through a new water tunnel and one of the largest infrastructure projects in city history.

The new tube provides backup to the city’s three-tunnel system.

“When I came into office, I asked, what could literally close down this city? A water tunnel failure could really have done that,” Mayor Michael Bloomberg said, his voice echoing in the cavernous site 200 feet below Central Park.

On Dec. 2, 1989, this very nearly happened. A hours-long tunnel failure had officials contemplating a shutdown of water flow from upstate’s Hillview Reservoir, which would have left chunks of the city without drinking water.

“If we were to lose one of the water tunnels without backup, that part of the city would be uninhabitable,” the mayor said.

Due to financial ups and downs after construction began in 1970, progress on the project has fluctuated since it was first envisioned by city planners in 1954.

Deputy Mayor Cas Holloway said the project was a testament to the “absolute necessity of long-term planning.”

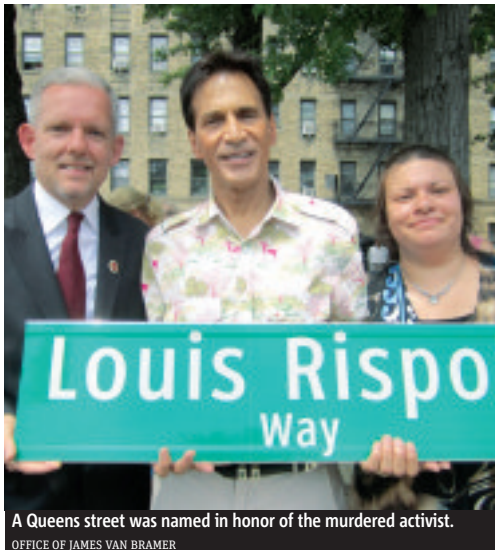

“It’s entirely consistent with the bold leaders in the city’s history who planned for growth,” Holloway said.

The last pieces of the tunnel will run through Brooklyn and Queens. When those sections are completed in the next few years, the city will be able to inspect and conduct maintenance on Water Tunnel 1 for the first time.

“It’s not sexy, and nobody says thank you, but we should all be sleeping better because of this,” Bloomberg said.

Suspected homicide of activist still unsolved

Investigation.

Louis Rispoli, a prominent gay rights activist, died one year ago.

The suspected homicide of prominent gay rights activist Louis Rispoli in Queens one year ago remains unsolved, and the NYPD says there are still no leads.

Police re-released sketches of two suspects yesterday, as well as an announcement of a $22,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons involved.

The news, however, only added to the frustration of Rispoli's friends and family, as the investigation into his death appeared to have been badly mismanaged from the start.

According to police reports, the incident occurred around 2:16 a.m. on Saturday, Oct. 20, 2012.

A 911 caller reported an assault-in-progress at the corner of 42nd Street and Queens Boulevard, but when responding officers arrived, they discovered Rispoli, bleeding from the head. He was pronounced dead at 8:55 p.m. five days later, on Oct. 25.

The medical examiner ruled Rispoli's death a homicide a couple of days after an autopsy found that the cause of death to be blunt force trauma to the head.

DANIELLE TCHOLAKIAN

Sketchy details

A witness told officers that he saw Rispoli get out of a car around 2:10 a.m. that night. One man stayed in the car while two others walked with Rispoli in front of 41-00 43rd Avenue.

- The three men were talking, when one of the men bashed Rispoli in the head with an object the witness couldn't identify. Rispoli collapsed to the ground and the two men got back in the car and tore off down 42nd Street, the witness said.

Bloomberg doesn't seem too keen on Banksy

Hard definition.

Halfway through Banksy's "show" in the city, the mayor appeared reluctant to call the graffiti pieces "art."

"Graffiti does ruin people's property and it's a sign of decay and loss of control. Art is art," Mayor Michael Bloomberg said.

Though Bloomberg didn't mention the elusive artist by name, he said that there are instances where art is acceptable.

"You running up to somebody's property or public property and defacing is not my definition of art," he said. "Or, it may be art, but it should not be permitted."

He added, "That's exactly what the law says."

While most of Banksy's pieces this month in the city may furrow the mayor's brow, the latest isn't vandalism at all, but a fiberglass statue called "McDonalds" that appeared in the South Bronx yesterday.

Congress passes

Shutdown. With under two hours to spare, Congress reached a deal to keep government open until Jan. 15.

Congress approved a deal yesterday to end a political crisis that partially shut down the federal government and brought the world's biggest economy to the edge of a debt default that could have threatened financial calamity.

The bill passed without any difficulty in the Republican-controlled House of Representatives after Speaker John Boehner dropped the party's efforts to link the spending measure to changes in President Barack Obama's health care law.

The deal, however, offers only a temporary fix and does not resolve the fundamental issues of spending and deficits that divide Republicans and Democrats. It funds the government until Jan. 15 and raises the debt ceiling until Feb. 7, so Americans face the possibility of another government shutdown early next year.

U.S. stocks surged, nearing an all-time high, as news spread that a deal was near.

The standoff between Republicans and the White House over funding the government forced the temporary layoff of hundreds of thousands of federal workers since Oct. 1 and created concern that crisis-driven politics was the "new normal" in Washington.

Sen. John McCain, whose fellow Republicans triggered the crisis with demands that the "Obamacare" health care law be defunded, said yesterday the deal marked the "end of an agonizing odyssey" for Americans.

The Senate passed the measure on a 81-18 vote, and the House followed suit at 10:15 p.m., clearing the way for Obama to sign it into law no later than today, when the Treasury says it will hit the $16.7 trillion debt ceiling.

Fully reopening the government was expected to take several days. While essential functions like defense and air traffic control have continued, national parks and agencies like the Environmental Protection Agency have been largely closed.

REUTERS

Senate Majority Leader Sen. Harry Reid (D-Nev.) arrives at a press conference. / GETTY IMAGES

Minor concessions

Although the deal would only extend borrowing authority until Feb. 7, the Treasury Department would have tools to extend its borrowing capacity beyond that date.

- The agreement includes some income verification procedures for those seeking subsidies under the health care law.

Economic repercussions

End of shutdown significant to markets

The fight over Obamacare rapidly grew into a brawl over the debt ceiling, threatening a default that global financial organizations warned could throw the United States back into recession and cause a global economic disaster.

"Even though the market is moving up, this is a real historic event that is happening here so there is pause and concern," said Frank Davis, director of sales and trading at LEK Securities in New York.

"You are seeing a lack of activity because it's hard to invest in a market where you don't know what's around the corner."

The Dow Jones industrial average and the Standard & Poor's 500 Index ended the day up nearly 1.4 percent.

Fitch Ratings had warned on Tuesday that it could cut the U.S. sovereign credit rating from AAA, citing the political brinkmanship over raising the debt ceiling.

A resolution to the crisis cannot come soon enough for many companies. American consumers have put away their wallets, at least temporarily, instead of spending on big-ticket items like cars and recreational vehicles.

"We're sort of 'crises-ed' out," said Tammy Darvish, vice president of DARCARS Automotive Group, a family-run company that owns 21 auto dealerships in the greater Washington area. REUTERS

No delay

Obama says he will sign bill immediately

President Barack Obama said last night he will sign legislation to reopen the U.S. government and avert a debt default as soon as it reaches the White House.

Speaking after the Senate voted to end the fiscal impasse, but before the House of Representatives took a vote, Obama said the government will reopen immediately after he signs the bill, ending a 16-day shutdown.

"We can begin to lift this cloud of uncertainty and unease from our businesses and from the American people," he said. REUTERS

Study: Oreos as addictive as cocaine?

Habit-forming.

Finding yourself reaching for that extra cookie? Blame your brain.

It may feel shameful to reach for that 10th cookie, but new research has shown that Oreos can be just as habit-forming as drugs like cocaine. Professor Joseph Schroeder of Connecticut College led the study, testing for the impact of snacks in low-income neighborhoods, and explained his alarming discovery.

Bonus question

Were the rats high?

No, it was the type of activation that happens all the time from engaging in a pleasurable act, the pleasure that's important for learning behaviors that promote survival, like eating and sex. But drug abuse hijacks that area so it's a different type of activation.

In what sense are the cookies more addictive?

We used a simple protocol to measure reward and test their preferences. The rats were given both stimuli, and in extended studies their pleasure centers had greater activation from Oreos. They also indicated preference by choosing the environment containing the Oreos. Each pair had four tests and after that they were conditioned.

Are other sugary snacks also powerfully addictive?

Perhaps; anything that palatable that includes sugar and fat can activate our brains that way. It would need to be treated the same as any other type of drug addiction.

In the U.S., the 5C is $100 cheaper than the premium 5S, which starts at $649 for the 16 GB model.

Signs that iPhone 5C is a bad Apple

Apple Inc. is cutting production orders for its plastic-backed iPhone 5C a month after launch, a source familiar with its supply chain said yesterday, fueling speculation the cheaper model of its main gadget may have been priced too high. Apple has asked one of its largest suppliers to increase production of the top-tier 5S, which went on sale at the same time, the Wall Street Journal reported. Analysts said this allayed concerns that the cheaper 5C will eat into premium sales and erode margins. Apple has told manufacturers it will reduce orders for the 5C smartphone in the final three months of the year, the source told Reuters. ## Man charged in carjacking attempt of Cal Ripken's mom

A Maryland man is facing charges after police said he tried to carjack baseball Hall of Famer Cal Ripken Jr.'s mother, Violet Ripken, who thwarted the armed attacker in a bank parking lot by activating her car's panic alarm from her key chain, police said.

Jesse A. Bowen, 33, has been charged with attempted armed robbery, attempted armed carjacking, possessing a dangerous weapon, first-degree assault and several controlled substance-related offenses, Aberdeen, Md., police said.

The attack comes just over a year after Violet was abducted from her home at gunpoint by a man who drove her around before leaving her unharmed near her house. REUTERS

Not cheap. California, New York top US list of priciest ZIP codes

Northern California's Silicon Valley boasts the two most expensive ZIP codes in the United States, with median home prices of more than $5.4 million, Forbes magazine said yesterday.

Atherton's 94027 ZIP code topped the list with prices hovering at $6.7 million, followed by 94022 in Los Altos Hills, where homes are slightly less at around $5.4 million.

Forbes attributed the tech boom and an influx of wealthy foreign buyers from China and India, as well as American billionaires, for Atherton's popularity, which jumped from third place last year.

Its most expensive home for sale is listed at $33 million.

Its cheapest, a two-bedroom bungalow, has an asking price of $1.2 million.

Calif. diver finds rare 18-foot oarfish carcass

Sea monster. A woman pulled the giant fish to shore.

A California marine instructor's weekend snorkel turned into the discovery of a lifetime when she found the carcass of a massive, eel-like creature of a species thought to have inspired legends of giant sea serpents. Catalina Island Marine Institute instructor Jasmine Santana spotted the 18-foot oarfish, as thick as a man's torso, while snorkeling in clear waters off the island's coast on Sunday, the institute said.

The creatures are found in all temperate to tropical waters, but because they dive to depths of 3,000 feet, they are rarely seen and remain largely unstudied. Little is known about their behavior, the nonprofit educational institute said.

Hop aboard. Kangaroo causes shutdown at Melbourne airport

An injured kangaroo shut down part of Melbourne Airport yesterday after it hopped through the busy terminal and into a drug store.

Police in the southeastern Australian city secured the store before wildlife workers tranquilized and captured the animal.

Given the name Cyrus, after one of his rescuers, the male eastern grey kangaroo was injured by a vehicle on a nearby road before making his way to the airport's second level.

Cyrus was now in veterinary care, said Karen Masson, the chief executive of Wildlife Victoria.

The terminal is near bushland frequented by groups of kangaroos, with some ending up

"We get calls," Masson said. "There are a lot of 'roos out there.'"

Wanted: Pregnant cows to help South Dakota ranches

Ranchers in South Dakota who lost large parts of their cattle herds to a winter storm are not asking for blankets or food. They want pregnant cows and heifers of breeding age, said a group organizing donations this week.

Twenty cattlemen so far have pledged cows to help replenish western South Dakota herds devastated in the Oct. 3-5 storm, said Montana rancher Kerry

White, head of Citizens for Balanced Use, which promotes grazing leases on federal lands.

Some parts of South Dakota were pummeled by up to 4 feet of snow.

More than 6,100 cattle have been reported dead from the storm that may have claimed up to 30,000 head at a time when they had not yet developed winter coats.

THE WORD

@dorothyatmetro
dorothy.robinson@metro.us

So, I feel like "Escape Plan" is one big meta joke on society. Mainly for the plot alone: In the film, Sylvester Stallone stars as a structural engineer known for building prisons from which no man can escape. When he is wrongly convicted of a crime, he is incarcerated in a prison that he designed. That's ... OK. I can suspend my disbelief just enough to pretend that Stallone has an advanced degree in engineering. But then Arnold Schwarzenegger co-stars as his fellow inmate who shows him the ropes. That's right. Arnold Schwarzenegger is stepping in for Morgan Freeman.

If that weren't ludicrous enough, the cast and crew of the movie had their after-party in Times Square at the Italian chain restaurant Buca di Beppo. Not to knock Buca, but usually big movie premieres are reserved for slightly more exclusive locales — and ones not in Times Square.

Then again, if you think about it, Times Square is practically a neon prison of its own design. So maybe it's apt?

Who was the biggest cat fan on 'The Office'?

The Friskies, an awards show dedicated to honoring the best new Internet cat videos, was the cat's meow Tuesday night in Manhattan with comedic relief from Michael Ian Black, "Office" star Angela Kinsey and everyone's favorite meme, Grumpy Cat. Kinsey, who is a cat lady both on- and off-screen, admitted that there was actually a bigger cat fan on "The Office" than she. "I would say the cat fan that trumps us all is Jenna [Fischer]. She worked with a rescue agency for a long time and actually fostered kittens. She hosted an event called "The Fur Ball at the Skirball," she told Metro, which had Black chiming in, "Yes, that's a kind of a second-tier Friskies event."

Speaking of Friskies, Black said he decided to sample some of the backstage snacks before he signed on to being a celebrity guest at The Friskies. "It was important to me that if I was going to host The Friskies that I sampled some of the product. So I had the lung-flavored Friskies. Also, the free-range lamb throat."

JA RULE

The rapper talks about how post-prison life brought him to "I'm in Love with a Church Girl."

CLEANING UP HIS ACT

What makes a man who's come out of prison stronger than when he got in? For Ja Rule, it's a firm belief in second chances and a whole lot of career plans. This spring, the man born Jeffrey Atkins was released from multiple prison stints, first for gun possession, then tax evasion. He's cleaned up his act, most notably by starring in the new faith-based film "I'm in Love with a Church Girl."

How do you see the parallels between your ### character and yourself?

There are a lot of similarities about me and [him]. We went through some of the same obstacles: prison, dealing with trying to be a better man, trying to do something positive with your life. But you still have that dark side of your life pulling you back. Those parallels are very similar.

What dark sides pulled you back?

The streets. Friends that are still doing street things. A lot of those situations put a black eye on what I

Quoted

"We went through some of the same obstacles: prison, dealing with trying to be a better man, trying to do something positive with your life."

Ja Rule, on his character in "I'm in Love with a Church Girl" was doing as far as my music and my films, because we had the federal investigations, I had the gun charge, the prison time — all those things were things that never should have happened. But, you know, such is life.

Why is this film an important story to tell?

I think any story about redemption and second chances is a great story to tell, because I think, as people, we all go through dark patches in our lives, things that we sometimes look at. Maybe we don't feel that there is going to be a brighter day. It's inspiring for people to see [the movie] because they look and it and say, "Well, damn, if he went through all of that and made it through, I can do it too." I know, when I was locked up in prison the one story that would stick to my ribs was Nelson Mandela. His prison made my prison look like a five-star hotel.

letters@metro.us

Taking a stand

You've been talking a lot about the gun law and having guns in general. Where do you think the line goes?

There's a very thin line, because in one breath I want to say there should be harsher gun laws. But then in the next breath I want to say we should be conscious about who we are attacking with these gun laws. I'm not saying that I didn't do something wrong, that I didn't commit a crime, because I did and I did my time for that. But I think that my time could have been used in a better way than to lock me up for two years. I don't think there is nobody on the streets that said "Oh, wow, you locked up Ja Rule for holding a gun, maybe I shouldn't hold my gun." What would have maybe been a better thing is for me to go out and speak to kids about gun violence and gang violence and gun control.

- No general anesthesia
- No hospitalization required. The procedure is performed at out clinic
- Resumption of normal activities right away
- Covered by Medicare and most insurance plans

Do Not Postpone Treatment

Varicose veins can start out as a seemingly small problem, but left untreated, can become much more serious. Complications of varicose veins may include ulcers. These may form on the skin near the affected veins, particularly near the ankles.

They are caused by fluid build-up in the dysfunctional veins and can be extremely painful.

Dysfunctional veins can also increase the risk of blood clots. Patients may experience a swelling in the leg, which may indicate a blood clot. Left untreated, these clots can travel through the bloodstream and lodge near the heart or lungs, causing potentially life-threatening health problems.

If you have already decided you'd like to receive vein treatments or would like to get a diagnosis, simply schedule an appointment with USA Vein Clinics today by calling (718) 732-0231

telekinetic teen antihero of "Carrie." / MICHAEL GIBSON

Must see

1 'Carrie' Stephen King's debut novel already received a masterful adaptation in Brian De Palma's sleazy 1976 stab. But here we go again. Luckily it's the ever-precocious Chloe Grace Moretz as the repressed teen with telekinetic powers and Julianne Moore taking over for Piper Laurie as her religious nutcase mom. And directing is "Boys Don't Cry"'s Kimberly Peirce. We might regret asking, but: How bad could it be?

filmed with Isabelle Adjani in 1988, this more slender take by Bruno Dumont ("Hadewijch") stars Juliette Binoche as the sculptress who wound up spending most of her life confined in a grungy psychiatric hospital.

9 'Captain Phillips' Paul Greengrass — who directed the middle two, superior "Bourne" entries — does his nervy, intense shtick on the true story of Richard Phillips (Tom Hanks), a merchant mariner kidnapped by Somali pirates. He lived to sell it as a relentlessly thrilling, nail-biting movie whose ending we already know.

10 'Gravity' After blowing people's minds with acrobatic long takes in "Children of Men" in 2006, director Alfonso Cuarón waited seven years to do it again. Sandra Bullock and George Clooney — and no one else — play astronauts trying to survive in a state of weightlessness.

Sarah Paulson goes to some impressively dark, violent places in director Steve McQueen's brutal and arresting "12 Years a Slave." She plays Mistress Epps, the petty and defensive wife of Michael Fassbender's malicious plantation owner. Strange, because "Michael Fassbender's wife" sounds like such an appealing job description.

This isn't what you imagined being married to Michael Fassbender would be like, is it?

And before I got to the part about what it's about, they were like, "Wait, wait, wait. Do you get to kiss him?" And I was like, "It's not that kind of movie, so unfortunately no." But from an acting standpoint it's everything I could've hoped for.

Even with this big of an ensemble, you still get a chance to make your impact. How did you find a way to understand her? I didn't want to judge her, even though I think she

Hiss-worthy

On evil deeds

Asked if she's ever done anything as violent as in "12 Years a Slave," Paulson says, "No, never. Never. And I hope to never again, although I do feel that it was very important for the narrative that it be as strong as that, to really show what was endured."

SARAH PAULSON

The "American Horror Story" actress talks about doing despicable acts in "12 Years a Slave."

MISTRESS OF THE HOUSE

It sure isn't. Every single person asked me when I told them. And I told them, "I'm doing this movie '12 Years a Slave.' I play Michael Fassbender's wife."

behaves despicably and does indefensible things, without question — and I'm not looking to justify her behavior on her behalf. But in terms of an actor trying to find a way into something, I had to figure out the motivating factors. And what was motivating her behavior was her terrible fear that she was about to lose her husband, along with the respect in her household, her regard in the community — all of it. I think she just went the only way she knows how. In my mind it was kind of like the way an animal defends its turf.

She does have a considerable amount of power over Master Epps, though.

She does, she does. Because I think she thinks he's weak, and when she sees his weakness she goes for it. Master Epps is really in love with Patsy [played by Lupita Nyong'o], but he hates himself for it. His own love for her is despicable to him and he knows it can't be and it's not right. My character plays on that fear in him and gets him to act out based on that ill feeling inside of himself. That's where her power lies.

Artist without archetype

Dance. Miguel Gutierrez is a coveted and controversial performance artist.

Miguel Gutierrez is anything but easily labeled. His work employs many forms of media, yet movement and sound are always at the fore. He creates bold, large-scale conceptual works — as well as intimate, highly personal solo performances. Both are celebrated in the states and abroad.

In his most recent production, "myendlesslove," Gutierrez offers a "not-quite-solo performance" dealing with trauma through imagery relating to sex, sorrow, romance and pleasure. Originally commissioned for 2006's MIX Festival, "myendlesslove" is now at Abrons Art Center through Oct. 19. This erotic and confrontational work was created to counter Gutierrez's acclaimed "Retrospective Exhibitionist" of 2005.

In our current climate of immediacy and increasingly compact technological advances, the five dated television sets onstage with VCR players and VHS tapes evoke a longing for the past. Gutierrez sits in high-heeled black ankle boots, legs crossed, wearing underwear and a sweater next to a TV screen projecting an identical image of him. A repeated conversation, reminiscent of a therapy session, begins between the two versions of him.

Connor Voss — a tall, sculpted, underwear-clad blond specimen wearing a backward baseball cap — stands in the audience and holds a full-length mirror in front of Gutierrez. Seductions ensue, including a wild, nude aerobic workout. Gutierrez sings of the realization of love, and we are reminded of how alone he is. Looping sound and sight, Gutierrez ultimately lures Voss into the space — and intimacy abounds. They slide and shift on the floor, in unison with each other and their reflective images on the television and in the mirror.

Activating generational questions within queer culture, "myendlesslove" is a transparent, tragic response to heartbreak.

The songs on "Uncanny Valley" began to materialize after they were playing shows to promote a vinyl re-release from their back catalogue.

"While we were practicing, we started to get little jams and grooves," says Morrison, "and after a while we were like, 'Well, hey, when the shows are over, why don't we get together and keep jamming?'"

Who do you think you are?

Hot costumes.

These are the characters you'll see everywhere this Halloween — and some other ideas.

Google just released a list of the most popular Halloween costumes this year (according to the most-searched costumes in Google Shopping) and if you guessed that Walter White/Heisenberg and Miley Cyrus topped the list, then congratulations, you're alive.

However, some of the other top contenders for hottest Halloween costume of 2013 just might surprise you. Also on the list: the Minions from "Despicable Me," Daenerys Targaryen from "Game of Thrones," the dude in the fox suit from the viral video "What Does the Fox Say?" and the bearded hillbillies from "Duck Dynasty." Yeah, that last one surprised us too.

If you're too lazy to come up with something original, we've rounded up some quick tips for getting into character this year. And for those who don't want to get confused with 15 other people at the party, we have some alternate ideas.

Walter White:

Don't want to have to start your own meth lab to afford a costume? Go as Walter White from the early episodes, when he's seen in nothing but his skivvies and a green apron (this is not for the modest). You can snag an apron pretty much anywhere. That, plus a pair of wire-rimmed glasses and socks and shoes, and you're cooking with gas (but hopefully not meth).

Or: Go as another lead character from a recently-ended hit show. Dexter! All you need to go as America's favorite psychopath is yet another apron, a brown shirt and "bloody" knife. You're killing it!

Daenerys Targaryen:

You can purchase a ready-to-wear costume on the Web, but they're pricey. Instead, buy a long blond wig, Grecian-style dress, a pair of strappy sandals (most women own these already) and — the crowning detail (no pun intended) — a stuffed dragon toy. Now you're ready to conquer civilizations — or the eligible dudes at the bar.

Or: Go as another popular TV character — a zombie from "The Walking Dead." It's not sexy, but a zombie is timeless, and easy. Some undead face paint, a bit of fake blood, torn clothing and you're ready to go. Brains!

SPIRIT COSTUMES

Twerk

Miley Cyrus

Oh, the options are endless. We're not going to suggest you go as "Wrecking Ball" Miley, though that would be an easy costume (just go naked). If you're not down with public nudity, the obvious choice is VMA Miley — complete with tiny bun "horns," nude-colored bootie shorts (or regular shorts, if you're modest), a bathing suit top (or tank top, if you're modest) and a big foam finger (grab one at a sports store, or order one for cheap on eBay). And, of course, let your tongue hang out of your mouth all night long. You won't be original, but you'll be unmistakable.

Or: You're going to see more Mileys shivering in their skivvies en route to the bar this year than sexy kittens. Be awesome and go as Billy Ray Cyrus instead. All you need is a mullet wig, a cowboy shirt, a giant fake soul patch and a guitar slung around your neck. Done and done.

Engaged? How to pop the prenup question

By the numbers

According to the most recent data, in 2011 there were 2,118,000 marriages and 877,000 divorces and annulments in the U.S.

- Average age of a woman to marry for the first time:
2012: 26.6
1987: 23.6
1962: 20.3

- Average age of a man to marry for the first time:
2012: 28.6
1987: 25.8
1962: 22.7

- The divorce rate for 50-plus crowd is going up: In 2011, 15.4 percent were divorced and 2.1 percent separated.

Learning how to communicate with your spouse about finances is an important step in the marriage process. / MOODBOARD

Splitsville. Marriage doubts can translate to dollar signs, so experts advise signing a contract before walking down the aisle.

When news broke about Kris and Bruce Jenner's separation last week, Steven Eisman, partner and director of the matrimonial law department at Abrams Fensterman, was surprised they didn't sign a prenuptial agreement before their 1991 wedding vows.

"They both had a substantial net worth at the time of their marriage — they were both somewhat celebrities," he says. Years later, after clothing lines, endorsement deals and a reality show, their net worth will be an issue as they head to divorce court.

Considering that the Jenners entered their union with children from former marriages, Eisman says prenups aren't unusual for second marriages because people want to take care of their children.

Kardashian empire aside, Eisman sees more and more couples walking down the aisle at a later age, which means they're more likely to have assets to protect. "They say, 'I love you forever and ever, but in case it doesn't work, I don't want to share everything I acquired before we tied the knot,'" he says. Sure, it's his job, but Eisman says it is indeed better to be prepared and realistic.

Kathleen E. Stoner, attorney and co-author of "Prenuptial Agreements: How to Write a Fair & Lasting Contract," says the cost of a prenup depends on how complicated it is and who drafts it. "High-end premarital agreements involving substantial assets could cost thousands of dollars. In contrast, simpler premarital agreements in some parts of the country might run between $500 and $1,000."

As for bringing up the sensitive topic with your spouse-to-be, she recommends talking early on and suggests that couples sign the contract at least three months before the big day. Stoner adds, "A prenup that is signed just days or hours before the wedding could be set aside under some state laws."

Although it's oh-so-unromantic to talk about finances and properties, she says any relationship will involve money, so the "best thing for people to do is to learn how to have those conversations in a loving way."

She also says that those conversations have to keep going throughout the relationship — it's wise to review the prenup every few years to see if it still makes sense. "Some prenups even include a commitment to doing that," she says.

Stoner says prenups are not for everyone, but she believes everyone should consider it and do their research. "Make a well-informed decision about [prenups] based upon the individual circumstances and the laws of [the] state."

Join us for a FREE Men's Health Seminar.

If you suffer from the symptoms of an enlarged prostate and you are not getting satisfactory results with medications or other treatments, or haven't explored treatment at all, it could be time to learn about your options.

Are any of these symptoms familiar to you?

- ☐ Need to frequently empty bladder
- ☐ Difficulty to begin to urinate
- ☐ Dribbling after urination ends
- ☐ Decrease in size and strength of stream
- ☐ Bladder never feels empty
- ☐ Pushing or straining to urinate
- ☐ Multiple trips to urinate at night

If so, it's possible that you may have an enlarged prostate or BPH. As you know, these symptoms can seriously interfere with your day to day life.

Attend our FREE Men's Health Seminar:

Jed Kaminetsky M.D., a board certified urologist, will be discussing the several options that can be used to treat BPH symptoms. He will also present The Rezum System, an investigational device designed to improve symptoms caused by BPH. If you decide to continue treatment with Dr. Kaminetsky, most insurances will be accepted. If you choose the Rezum Investigational device, and qualify, all testing and treatments are of no cost.

In addition to BPH, other topics will be discussed, such as low testosterone and erectile dysfunction.

WHAT TO DO WHEN YOU HEAR 'I'M COMING OUT'

National Coming Out Day, which is upheld annually on Oct. 11, is a celebration of sexual orientation self-disclosures. But people "come out" about a variety of sexual matters every day. When someone in a relationship divulges sexual orientation, gender identity or an alignment with certain sexual behaviors or fetishes, it can send the other partner reeling. My friend and fellow sexuality educator Cory Silverberg, M.Ed., is a founding member of Canada's sex store co-op Come As You Are. I asked him to weigh in on how couples can navigate any coming out experience — whether they're asking for new moves in the bedroom or revealing a new penchant for people of the same sex.

"Coming out" is not just for gay people — being honest about your problems and questions is essential to any relationship. / WAVEBREAK MEDIA

Dos and don'ts

- DO remember that what is (and should be) an experience of self-expression for one partner could feel like a bomb has dropped on the other. "When someone comes out, they don't come out alone," says Silverberg. "For their partner, it can feel like all sorts of things, including betrayal."
- DO stay together, if warranted. "Be prepared to give it some time," he advises. "We know sometimes relationships are bumpy and sometimes they're smooth. This will probably be a bumpy time. Know that the first reaction might not be the best reaction."
- DO break up, if needed. Relationships are about compatibility, and when someone changes it could signal newfound incompatibility. "Sometimes, it does mean the end of the relationship. If that's the case, it's sad, but it might also be OK. This idea that we're supposed to be in relationships for the rest of our lives is just one idea of [what a] relationship is," Silverberg says.
- DON'T assume anyone's identity — including your own — is static. People are more like dimmers than on/off light switches. "We are always in the process of becoming ourselves," Silverberg proposes.
- DON'T believe your entire relationship has been a lie. "If someone comes out to you, it may not only feel like things have changed — it could also feel like you have to reevaluate everything that was. It doesn't have to be this way," he says. "It doesn't mean there wasn't love or commitment. It may not even mean there wasn't good sex. There may have been all of those things."
- DON'T assume you can't talk to other people about ## Advice. Experts talk All Hallows' Eve essentials.

Forget a frightening face mask or the most ferocious fangs; the scariest part of Halloween can be the planning. Pumpkin carving means an inevitable mess. Every spooky snack seems to have been done before (does anyone really like witch-hand popcorn bags?). We get expert help to break down the essentials of a festive Halloween party that will impress both your martini-loving girlfriends and their 5-year-olds. All we're leaving up to you is the costume.

Decoration

Maybe you don't have the space — or the energy — to recreate Elvira's haunted house. As home entertaining and lifestyle expert Cheryl Najafi explains, less can be more. "It can be as simple as spider webs," she says. One of Najafi's favorite festive decorations, a "spider web" simply consists of cloth webbing, available at craft or party stores. "Just tack them up on one side of the doorway, and pull them across the entryway onto another side so people have to duck to come in," she says. "It just kind of sets the mood that you're festive and having fun with the holiday."

Spider webbing can also shift your decor from fall to frightening. "I love using the mini pumpkins in a bowl," Najafi says, offering another space-saving trick. "You can create a Halloween look and feel by using spider webbing across the table, underneath the bowl."

Spooky supplies

While Najafi swears by craft stores like Michaels and Hobby Lobby, she says you don't necessarily have to make a special trip for your spooky decorations. "You can also go, surprisingly enough, to grocery stores," she says. "They have an amazing collection of things that you don't see at Michaels because they're already done for you. Keep your eye out for little kiosks with things like candy googly eyes."

Make sure to decorate your space ahead of time, reserving the day of the party for grub. "I find that it takes so little time to decorate as compared to prepping food, but if you have them together, it seems like both are overwhelming," Najafi says.

Food

You don't have to be artsy to make even the most creative culinary concoctions. Take Najafi's "Creepy Crawly Deviled Eggs," for example. "The eggs just have a black olive cut in half, and [olive] slivers for the legs. This takes absolutely no skill whatsoever," she says.

Recipe

Creepy Crawly Deviled Eggs

Makes 36 deviled eggs

INGREDIENTS

- 18 eggs
- 1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
- ¼ cup water
- ¼ cup light olive oil
- 2 teaspoons paprika
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 6-ounce can large black olives

Surprisingly, these actually are super easy to make. /PROVIDED

DIRECTIONS

- Place eggs in a single layer in a large pot.
- Fill pot with cold water until eggs are covered by about one inch.

- Bring eggs, uncovered, to a rolling boil.
- Remove the pot from heat after boil is achieved and cover tightly with lid.
- Set timer and allow eggs to sit, covered, for 12 minutes.
- Carefully remove eggs from the pot and place in a bowl of ice water to cool.
- Let cool completely, then remove shells.

Treats for tykes

Child's play

- Haunted Highline Halloween, Oct. 26, 11 a.m.-3 p.m., free
Here, families can decorate pumpkins, show off their costumes in a photo booth, get their faces painted and wander through a hay-bale maze.
- The NY Botanical Garden's Haunted Pumpkin Garden Carving demonstration, Oct. 19-21, on display through Oct. 31, Adults $20, Kids $8
Little ones can enjoy the fall foliage with the backdrop of pumpkins that have been carved by the Food Network's Ray Villafane.
- Central Park's Pumpkin Fest, Oct. 26, 11 a.m.-3 p.m., free
Families can get their Halloween on with activities like live Quid-ditch matches, pumpkin carving and marionette performances, with an added PUP-kin zone for four-legged friends.

Scary-good cocktails for Halloween

Serve up a bloody good time with these devilish drinks.

BY MEREDITH ENGEL

Cruzan Haunted Cinn

1 ½ parts Cruzan Velvet Cinn
1 part Cruzan Aged Dark Rum
½ part DeKuyper Blood Orange Liqueur
Float DeKuyper Hot Damn! Liqueur
Flamed orange zest

Instructions: Combine Cruzan Velvet Cinn, Cruzan Aged Dark Rum and blood orange liqueur in a tumbler over ice and stir for 15 seconds. Strain into a chilled martini glass. Float a small amount of Hot Damn! Liqueur on top and finish with a flamed orange zest.

Black Widow

3 ounces Hpnotiq Harmonie
1 ounce premium vodka
1 ounce grapefruit juice
1 ounce grenadine

Instructions: Shake well and strain into martini glass. Garnish with toy spider.

Beetle Juice

1½ parts Courvoisier Rosé
½ parts DeKuyper Crème de Cassis
Orange juice

Instructions: Build cocktail in an ice-filled highball glass. Garnish with a lime squeeze.

SVEDKA Orange Scream Pop

2 parts SVEDKA Orange Cream Pop
½ part heavy cream
¼ part vanilla syrup
Float grenadine
Garnish with candy corn

Instructions: Combine ingredients in cocktail shaker over ice, shake and strain into martini glass. Garnish with candy corn. For vanilla syrup: De-seed one vanilla pod and cut into quarters. Steep in one cup of hot water, turn off heat and add one cup of granulated sugar. Store covered for 24 hours. Strain into a container.

And one wine to serve

How spooky is this new Ravenswood Winery varietal, Besieged? A blend of characteristically very dark fruits, this $15 medium-bodied wine has notes of cherries, red plums and autumnal spices.

It's perfect to serve with roasted white meat, vegetables and even pumpkin bread.

Morocho

Peruvian food in Union Square

Vandenberghe calls the food here "beyond your average lunch." "Organ meat isn't that popular in the New York street food scene. But here it's fried to perfection, juicy and crunchy. It's served with a nicely made black mint sauce, a kick for any street foodie." Order this: Veal heart stick

NYC's best street food

We had Tom Vandenberghe, author of the upcoming "New York Street Food," give us his top picks for food trucks in the city. He would know, right? MEREDITH ENGEL

The Cinnamon Snail

Vegetarian food on Park Avenue

"This is how funky vegan food [should] be," the author says of the "innovative, fresh, well-managed place." One word of advice: "Check in early to beat the queue." Order this: Tempeh sandwich

Tortas Neza

Mexican food in Jackson Heights, Queens

"This guy is passionate about soccer and tortas," the author says. "The Mexican sandwiches he serves are named after Mexican soccer teams. They come in huge piles. If you want to try something more digestible, go for the salted beef tacos." Order this: Salted beef tacos

Veronica's

Cocktail of the week

Cheers to Emily

It's still Breast Cancer Awareness Month, and Langham Place, Fifth Avenue is commemorating the occasion with a cocktail dedicated to one of its nearest and dearest. Cheers to Emily is a blend of Blanco tequila, pink grapefruit liqueur, lemon and strawberry syrup in memory of Emily Easter, a friend of the hotel who lost her battle with breast cancer just a couple weeks ago. $1 from each drink ($16) will go to the Pink Daisy Project — a charity Easter was fond of — which supports women in the throes of illness by providing care when a cure is too late.

Tyler Florence

"I know the first place we head to is always Barbuto (775 Washington St., 212-924-9700). We love Jonathan Waxman and his general manager, Jen Davidson. We never really feel like it's been a true visit to NYC without having his roasted chicken with a glass of rosé. Delicious!"

Florence will be at Saturday's Pitch Me: How to Turn Your Love for Food into a Successful Culinary Business, plus Saturday's Flavors of the West Coast and Sunday's Grand Tasting.

Ted Allen

"I live in NYC; my favorite meals lately have been at Andrew Carmellini's place in SoHo, The Dutch (131 Sullivan St., 212-677-6200) and in Fort Greene, Brooklyn, at Matthew Hamilton's wonderful Lulu & Po (154 Carlton Ave., 917-435-3745). Both are so personal and special!"
Allen will be at Sunday's Bloody Mary Brunch.

"My favorite NYC restaurant changes all the time, but I do love Mission Chinese (154 Orchard St., 212-529-8800). I love the egg Egg noodles — they are the Asian version of carbonara!"

Burrell will be at Sunday's Grand Tasting and the Sunday Slices pizza party.

Marc Murphy

"In a city like New York, it's hard to pick a favorite spot because there are many great restaurants, but one of my go-to places is Extra Virgin in the West Village (259 W. Fourth St., 212-691-9359). I love it because it's a lively vibe in an intimate atmosphere and the food is incredible. The chef is my good friend Joey Fortunato, who I actually worked with as his sous chef a million years ago! You really can't go wrong with any of the pastas, but one of my favorites is the baked lasagna on Monday nights. I also love the grilled halibut that's served with fresh herbs, tomato carpaccio, arugula and extra virgin olive oil."

Murphy will be at Friday's Burger Bash, Saturday's Taste New York Brunch and Sunday's Bloody Mary Brunch.

Horoscope

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. Share your thoughts, but don't force your desires on others. Keep your life simple.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21. An unusual change you make at home will enable you to master a skill. An interesting emotional connection will inspire you.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. Life can be refreshingly simple, so refrain from making it complex. Take matters one step at a time, and you will get everything done correctly and efficiently.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20. Be prepared to counter any negative situation. Keep close tabs on what everyone is doing.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18. Alter what you need to in order to feel good about a job or commitment that someone has asked you to complete. Focus on self-improvement and raising your profile.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. Turn an idea into an investment, keep your options open and discuss plans. A contract will improve your cash flow.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20. Partnerships will be uncertain. Be open to discussion and prepared to compromise. Stick to the rules.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. Listen to someone you respect, and you'll get a different outlook on a confusing situation. Don't feel obligated to make a decision.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. A personal situation can influence the way you deal with work. Make a point to finish whatever is expected of you. Don't let false information lead to a mishap.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. Look for a lifestyle that motivates you to pursue the things that make you happy. Follow your intuition, and you won't be disappointed.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. Bring about any changes that will help you be your best. Spend more time with people who encourage you.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22. If you believe in your abilities and remain determined in your plans, you can make things happen. Don't sit back. Call in favors. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Ignorance is bliss

Ignorance of money, sovereignty and our Constitution must be bliss for our legislators. Smart sovereign leaders can never default on their debts because money is made by fiat: laws declaring paper, gold or digits as money that is issued, not borrowed, and circulates freely and without debt. However, our government mistakenly acts like a household and borrows money, money that it has the power to make itself without interest. The Constitution gave it the right to coin money. So why don't they?

DAVID SNIICKUS, VIA EMAIL

Don't dread the dreads

As a Rastafarian and a proud American, I am tired of facing judgments and discrimination based on my looks (I have dreads, etc). Bob Marley teaches us that love and peace are the only way, but it's hard when everyone looks at you like you are a straight-out fool. I've been treated badly by cops, firemen, hospital security guards and even fast-food workers. Come on, peeps, let's get together and be all right.

JIMMY RUSTLER, VIA EMAIL

Furlough isn't end of the world

Furloughed government workers have to obtain money to live now, even taking out loans, but it should be mentioned when the partial government shutdown is over they will receive full back pay. The Republican-controlled House of Congress already approved. So when they receive their back pay, the loans can be fully repaid, assuming the workers are financially responsible people.

Cribbs ready for a 'rebirth' in New York

NFL. The former Browns Pro Bowler wants to prove doubters wrong.

With wide receiver Clyde Gates out for the season with a shoulder injury, the Jets turned to Josh Cribbs, who signed a contract on Tuesday and could provide a spark for a bland offense.

Cribbs, who has the most all-purpose yards in Browns franchise history, comes to a Jets wide receiver corps in desperate need of a game breaker.

Now he has to seize it. "This is like a rebirth for me, a fresh start. As a rookie, I came in undrafted and I had to prove to everybody — everyone on the NFL and around the team — that I could play on this team and produce," Cribbs said. "I have to do that now again just to show everyone that, 'Dang, he still got it.'"

NFL. Giants prepare for desperate Vikings, new QB Josh Freeman

The Giants didn't practice yesterday since they won't play until Monday night, but it didn't stop them from preparing for the Vikings with great urgency.

Despite being given the day off, the players were still at the facilities and studying for an opponent they rarely see.

"[Desperation] is probably the word that you can use. We look at each game as the most important game of the year, whether we're in this situation or not," said Coughlin.

"It certainly is a very important game for us because we're trying like heck to put ourselves in a position where we get some reinforcement for our team, our players, our fans, all of the above."

Minnesota is also desperate for a spark. They're in the midst of their third quarterback, as they announced Josh Freeman will get the nod.

"We're going to give him more this week to see how he handles it. He's done a good job in the meetings and what we've asked him to do on the practice field," Frazier said of Freeman.

"We anticipate a hungry team, looking for their first win of the season. [But] we are hungry to get our second win of the season. ... It's two teams that are desperately fighting to get a win."

Bye bye Melo?

Anthony to test free agency

Knicks forward Carmelo Anthony tells the New York Observer he will test free agency — at some point. He can opt out of his deal after this season. "I want to be a free agent," he said. "I think everybody in the NBA dreams to be a free agent at least one time in their career."

Shifting allegiances

Bars change,
but fandom
never does

Zapatka and Foote were once regulars at the Boston-friendly Riviera Cafe and Sports Bar in the West Village, but they and a couple dozen other people switched their allegiance to Professor Thom's when it opened just a year after the breakthrough World Series win. ("Professor Thom's," the bar's Twitter account says. "Behind enemy lines since 2005!")

The reason for their mass exodus is behind the bar, pulling drinks and greeting regulars loudly and by name.

Jim McGuire was always a favorite at the Riviera, and when he left the bar over a much-publicized disagreement with the owner, his regulars never looked back.

EMILY JOHNSON

Shippin' up to Manhattan?

Bars like Professor Thom's, in the East Village, are enjoying the benefit of their Red Sox roots this postseason. / EMILY JOHNSON, METRO

Bronx bean-eaters. Red Sox fans are living among us New Yorkers — and they're out in droves this postseason.

Horton Foote Jr. is watching the game from a table in the back of Professor Thom's, the noted Boston sports bar on 2nd Avenue and 14th Street. It's barely 5 p.m. on a Tuesday and the bar is getting more crowded by the minute.

"I still get the feeling, when I see a New Yorker with a Yankees hat — even though we're in New York — that they're just doing it to piss me off," Foote, 60, says with a laugh.

He glances at the TV screen. It's the bottom of the fourth of Game 3 of the ALCS and Foote's beloved Red Sox are battling to take the lead in the series against Detroit.

"But you kind of feel sorry for them now," he adds. "They suck so bad."

It isn't just David Ortiz's Game 2 grand slam — a moment that almost literally brought down the house at Professor Thom's on Sunday night — that has Boston fans in New York riding high.

In the days before the Sox finally broke their notorious curse by winning the 2004 World Series, the fierce old rivalry combined with a gnawing sense of inferiority to make things decidedly unpleasant for Boston loyalists brave or perverse enough to make their home here.

But with two championships in the last 10 years, a strong team still in the running in October and their arch-nemesis failing to even make the playoffs — life in enemy territory is not just better, it's positively grand.

Seated across from Foote is Rhonda Zapatka, 40, who grew up in Boylston, Mass., but has lived in Manhattan for 15 years. She's currently working on a book about her experience. One title she briefly considered and then discarded as "too chick-lit" was "Sox and the City."

"It's much easier to be a Sox fan in New York now," she says. "But still, I almost feel like I live a double life. It's amazing how much being a Sox fan affects every aspect of your life."
